

Arson Investigation Continues

February 27, 2009

We are often asked about the status of the investigation stemming from last March's arson fires that took place at the 2007 Seattle Street of Dreams site of Quinn's Crossing.

According to Robbie Burroughs, spokesperson for the Seattle Field Office of the FBI, "We are still aggressively investigating the case and we ask those with any information to continue to contact their local FBI office."

We remain hopeful that this case can and will be solved sooner than later. Any updates we receive will be posted on our web site as soon as we receive them.
