Early this morning, we spoke with the Snohomish County Fire Chief on the scene at the fire at the Quinn's Crossing subdivision where last summer's 2007 Seattle Street of Dreams took place. At the time, he said that three of the homes were completely destroyed; they were able to control the fire on the 4th home, and that one home was saved. We were informed that all five homes had 'sets'. We were also informed that the FBI, ATF, and the Snohomish County Sheriff were on the scene and are investigating.

We are stunned by this event, and we thank God that each of the homes were unoccupied and that there were no apparent injuries.

We are all in the early stages of assessing the options available to us as we move forward, and will keep you updated with as much info as we learn more.

Thank you.
