

Street of Dreams Sustainable Flooring Finds Way To Montana Governor's Mansion

What does 2007 Seattle Street of Dreams builder WaterStone Homes have in common with the governor of Montana? Turns out that both Governor Brian Schweitzer and Tim McCormack of Waterstone Homes love to use small diameter larch flooring in their homes. Typically, larch is the wood that's best to cull when restoring Montana forests, as it's part of the dense undergrowth that fuels the wildfires that have become so much more catastrophic in recent years. Larch is also known as 'Tamarack', which just happens to be the name of Tim's Street of Dreams home too!

Un-Restored Larch

Restored Larch & Fir Forest

Finished Product